

Bios for Sgt. Kathryn Willett and Insp. David Boon

Inspector David Boon

Inspector David Boon joined Halifax Regional Police in 1995 and is currently the Integrated Criminal Investigations Divisional Commander, a position he has held since July 2021. Prior to this he was the Central Divisional Commander. Before joining HRP, he served four years with the Kentville Police Service. Throughout his career, he has been assigned to various positions in the patrol and criminal investigation divisions, including Emergency Response Team (ERT), General Investigation Section, Sexual Assault Investigative Team (SAIT) and Homicide. He was awarded Investigator of the Year in both 2006 and 2010. He was selected as NCO in charge of the Aviation Security Unit and took over armed response to pre-board alarms at the Halifax Stanfield International Airport. He was assigned to Watch Commander and is also a Critical Incident Commander.

Sgt. Kathryn Willett

Sergeant Kathryn Willett joined Halifax Regional Police in 2005 and is currently the supervisor responsible for investigations of Missing Persons and Human Trafficking. Prior to that assignment, Kathryn was the Supervisor in the Sexual Assault Investigative Team (SAIT) Internet Child Exploitation (ICE) and the Drug Unit. Kathryn has also worked as a Community Constable in the communities of Scotia Court and Dartmouth North. While in those communities Kathryn was a recipient of various awards for her work with woman and children leaving domestic violence situations from Alice Housing, in addition to her contribution to public safety from HRM. A native of Halifax, Kathryn is a graduate of St. Mary's University and has a degree in Criminology, Psychology and Sociology. Her passion for volunteering has resulted in work with the special Olympics, Feed Nova Scotia and more.