History of 954 Old Sackville Road

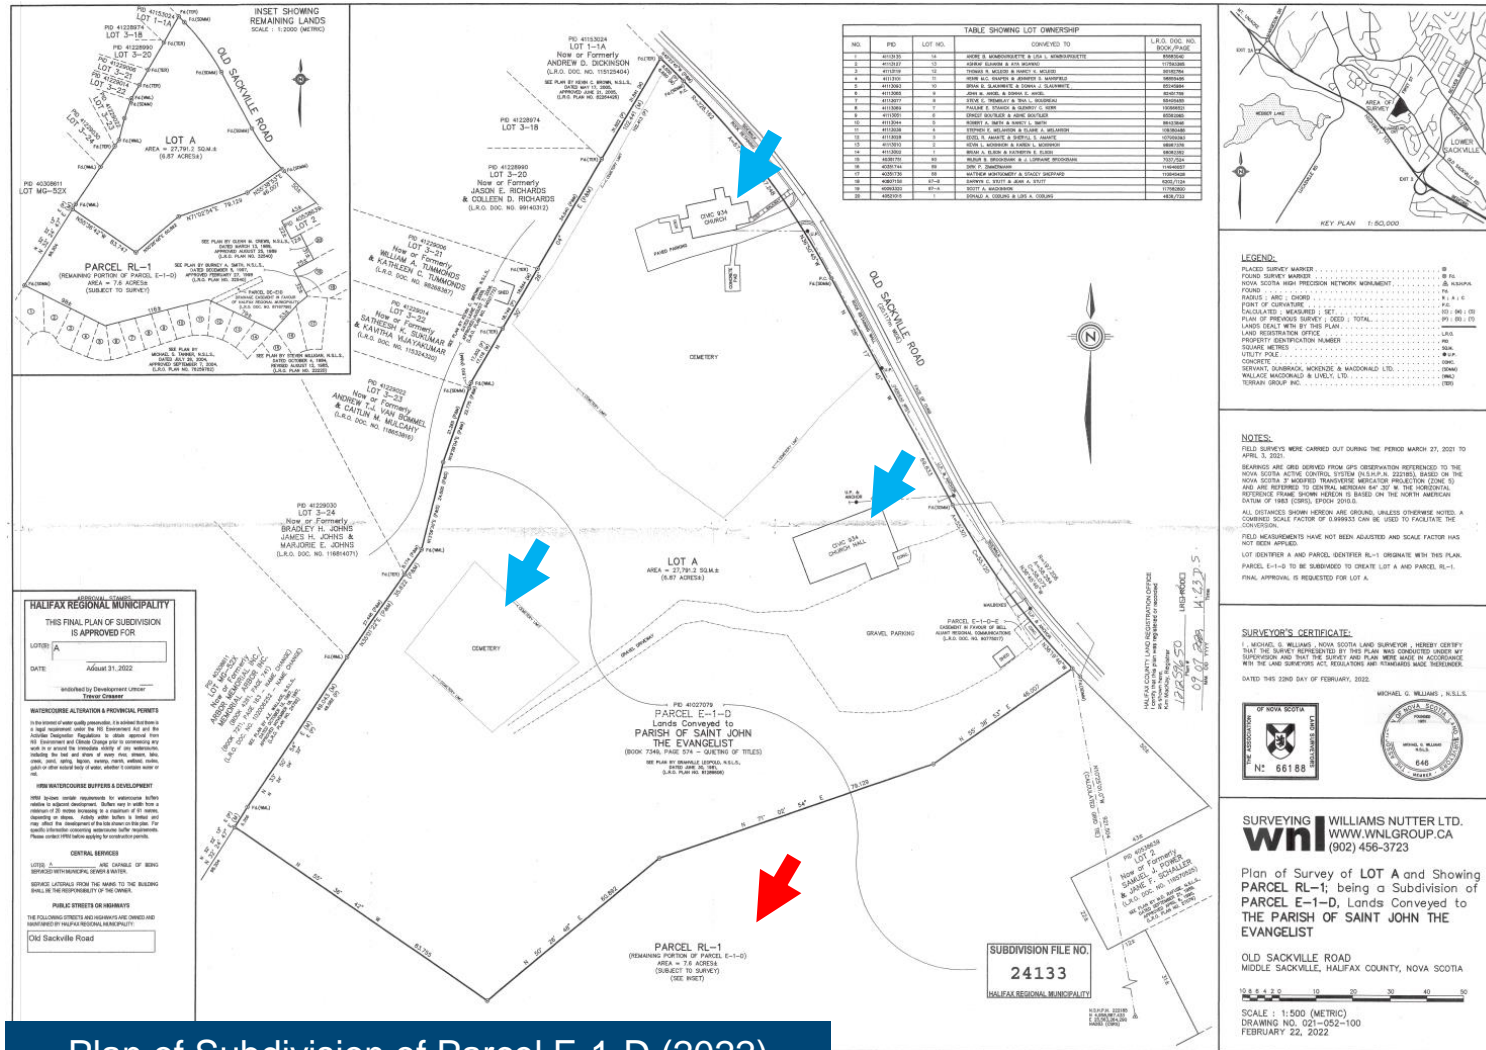

St. John's Anglican Church

- The church was constructed in 1829 by builders William Fultz, Thomas Hamilton, and Francis Robinson
- It was consecrated in 1830 by Charles Inglis, Nova Scotia's first Anglican bishop
- The church was attended by Dr. George Lawson and his family, who established Canada's first experimental farm adjacent to the church
- St. John's cemetery predates the church; the parish was established sometime after 1749 and tombstones bear dates as early as 1790
- At least 16 members of the Uniacke family are interred in the cemetery

Deregistration of Parcel RL-1

- Parcel E-1-D was subdivided into Lot A and remainder Parcel RL-1 in 2022
- Both Lot A and Parcel RL-1 remain registered, despite Parcel RL-1 having no heritage value nor character-defining elements
- Deregistration of Parcel RL-1 will not affect Lot A.

Plan of Subdivision of Parcel E-1-D (2022)

Recommendation

It is recommended that the Heritage Advisory Committee recommend that Regional Council:

- 1) Commence the deregistration process by setting a date for a public hearing to consider deregistering the municipally registered heritage property known and designated as Parcel RL-1 (PID 41027079) on Attachment A of this report; and
- 2) Deregister the property known as PID 41027079, as shown as Parcel RL-1 on Attachment A of this report.
